

LAW & JUSTICE

What can you do with a Ph.D. in Law & Justice?

Law Enforcement/Private Security

Become an officer, consultant or researcher. In this fast growing area, many of the leaders in law enforcement/private security have graduate degrees.

Corrections

Become an officer, consultant or researcher in the area of prisons, jails, probation, parole and related areas at the adult or juvenile level.

Legal Policy Analyst

Become a researcher/consultant at the federal, state or local level concerning law and justice policy and practice.

Courts

Become a researcher/consultant regarding the courts at the federal or state level.

University/College Teaching and Research

Teach at a college or university and become involved in academic research.

What Does Central Have to Offer?

- The McNair Scholars Program that pairs students in one-on-one faculty research mentorships and provides guidance through the graduate school application process, including GRE preparation!
- Research and internship opportunities that will help build your graduate school resume
- A student run Law and Justice club.
- Numerous guest speakers throughout the year and many social/networking activities for L & J students

Top-Ranked Law Programs:

Harvard; Stanford; Yale; Columbia; UC-Berkeley

Top-Ranked Programs in Public Affairs:

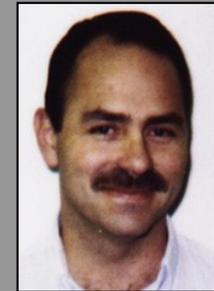

Syracuse; Harvard; U of Indiana - Bloomington; UC - Berkeley; University of Southern California

Top-Ranked Criminology Programs:

U of Maryland - College Park; University of

Featured CWU McNair Scholars Alumnus:

Rodrigo Murataya

Ph.D. - Leadership Studies - Gonzaga University

M.A. - Public Administration - University of Washington

B.A. - Law & Justice - Central Washington University

A.A. - Yakima Valley College

Dr. Rodrigo Murataya has served as a police officer and specializes in criminal law, law enforcement and comparative criminal justice with a particular focus on Mexico. He is currently an Associate Professor in CWU's Law and Justice Department.