

Course Prefix & Number SOC 107 – Principles of Sociology

LEARNER OUTCOMES	ASSESSMENT
Able to identify and describe various theoretical perspectives on society and individuals.	Students will take written in-class exams, demonstrating recognition of and ability to discuss basic sociological concepts and theories.
Demonstrate knowledge of how social conditions shape individual behavior.	Students will complete written assignments to show the connections between individual life and social forces.
Apply sociological perspective in analyzing social reality.	Students will discuss in class the contributions of sociology to the understanding of social phenomena.
Recognize the similarities and differences between sociology and other social science disciplines.	Students will compare and contrast sociological approach and other disciplines' approach to a particular topic.