

Course Prefix & Number SOC 356 – Sociology of Gender

LEARNER OUTCOMES	ASSESSMENT
Students will identify what it means to be gendered in this society.	Students will take an exam in which they identify what it means to be gendered in this society.
Students will critically analyze the positions of males and females within the various institutions.	Students will write a paper in which they analyze the positions of males and females in various social institutions.
Students will identify the gendered beliefs that affect expectations, experiences, and opportunities of women and men.	Students will take an exam in which they identify the gendered beliefs that affect expectations, experiences, and opportunities of women and men.
Students will analyze how other social categories impact gender throughout the life course.	Students will take an exam in which they demonstrate how social categories impact issues of gender throughout the life course.