Course Prefix & Number SOC 367 – Sociology of Religion

LEARNER OUTCOMES	ASSESSMENT
Students will identify the methodological and theoretical tools used by sociologists in the study of religion.	Students will write a research paper using the methodological and theoretical tools used by sociologists in the study of religion.
Students will identify the basic organizational principles underlying religious institutions.	Students will take an exam identifying the basic organizational principles underlying religious institutions.
Students will assess the impact that religion has on institutions in society.	Students will take an exam that assesses the impact religion has on institutions in society.