The CWU-ROC is a community project built on the idea that students in recovery have a place to call their own.
Beginning in Fall 2015, Central Washington University is proud to offer Haven House, an on-campus living option for students in recovery from substance use and addiction.

Designed to meet the wellness and recovery goals that celebrate a student’s decision to be in recovery.

With minimal on-campus recovery options nationwide, CWU recognizes the need to support students working toward recovery while also providing a safe and supportive atmosphere for students as they strive to achieve both academic and personal success.

This well balanced environment is a lifestyle choice which is academically designed, peer and mentor supported, and career focused.
