CWU Students Victorious at NHRMA Competition

Six students and two advisors from Central Washington University's student SHRM chapter attended the Northwest Human Resource Management Association (NHRMA) Student Conference and Case Competition in Bellingham, WA and they all came back champions. This was the first of hopefully many case competitions to come and not surprisingly CWU set a precedent of sending a winning team. Four other schools competed in the case competition.

The CWU team (Lauren Bair, Jeremy McCann, Amanda Rice, & Jane Diaz) was the first to receive the case and be shut in a room for four hours to research, prepare a power point presentation, and write an executive summary. At the end of the four hours the team presented the case to a panel of judges made of professionals in the Human Resource field. The other four teams proceeded to do the same for the next several hours.

While the case competition was taking place the other two students attending the conference (Randall Alvord & Dimple Patel) participated in a scavenger hunt around the Western Washington University (WWU) Campus. The following day after all the competing was over the six students attended the conference and the networking portion with a theme of "A Brave New World." There were some great speakers on a variety of topics. That afternoon after waiting all day in anticipation it was announced that CWU had taken first place in both the scavenger hunt and the case competition. The success of the students attending the conference is a reflection of not only their own hard work but also the dedication of incredible advisors and a Human Resource program of which CWU should be proud.

15th Annual SHRM Golf Tournament

On Saturday, May 16th, CWU SHRM held their 15th annual golf tournament at the Ellensburg Golf and Country Club. There were 72 players who were broken down into teams of four.

This golf tournament is SHRM's largest fundraiser, raising about $4,000 a year. This fundraiser allows our members to attend several different conferences.

We are looking forward to next years golf tournament .

We would like to thank all of our sponsors and participants.
