Pulse Magazine is an award winning student led lifestyle magazine. Pulse is one of twenty-two finalists out of nearly 100 entries for the ACP Pacemaker award, a top award in college journalism. It has also been recognized as a regional winner with the Society of Professional Journalists. This magazine is available online as well as in print. The students that work on the magazine gain direct experience in editorial work, design, content management and reporting. The entire student population has access to the publication and is able to read up on a variety of issues and special interest stories that speak to them and their generation. It is a true point of pride here at CWU.
