Central Washington University acknowledges the people who have been on this land since time immemorial. The Ellensburg campus is on lands ceded by the Pshwanapum and other bands and tribes of the Yakama Nation in the Treaty of 1855. The Yakama people remain committed stewards of this land, cherishing it and protecting it, as instructed by elders through generations. We are honored and grateful to be here today on their traditional lands, and give thanks to the legacy of the original people, their lives, and their descendants.

Love-in-a-mist
Mary Rolofson Gamble (1848–1937)

Love in a mist of doubt was lost;
The wildwood paths were all crisscross'd,
This way or that? O, where was she?
And which path led to the trysting tree?

A green elf whispered right in her ear:
“Are you sure your lover is quite sincere?”
Lovers are seldom what they seem
And love itself is a haunting dream.

But a little blind god lived in the wood.
Unseen, unheard in the path he stood.
A feather dropp'd from an angels wing
With speed he placed in his magic sling!

Straight into the heart of the maid it flew!
Faith livd. Ah! Doubt vanish'd, the world was new.
Heav'n's glory mark'd the path to her trust.
And never again was love in a mist.

Bewilderment
Langston Hughes (1901–1967)

I ask you this: Which way to go?
I ask you this: Which sin to bear?
Which crown to put
Upon my hair?
I do not know,
Lord God,
I do not know.

Out of the South Blew a Wind
Fannie Carter Woods (1882–1948)

Out of the South blew a soft sweet wind; Ooh....
And on its breath was a song
Of fields and flow'rs and leafy bow'rs
And bees that hum all day long.

Out from the South blew a soft low wind; Ooh....
On its wings was the joy of a dream
And it hovered so near
I was sure I could hear
The call of the woodland stream.

Out of the South blew a soft sweet wind
And on its breath was a song.
