Guide for Prospective LAJ Students

Students may determine whether they are ready to apply for the LAJ program by reviewing their Academic Progress report, accessible through the CWU Safari online system.

GPA

The LAJ department requires a minimum combined cumulative GPA of 2.25 to declare the major or minor. This is found under the “CWU/Transfer Combined Cumulative GPA” section of the Academic Progress Report.

Credits

The LAJ department also requires that students have completed or be near completion of all their general education/basic breadth courses. For most students, this occurs towards the end of their sophomore year, at around 90 total completed credits. The department begins admitting students at around 80 completed credits.

The credit count is found under the “Degree Units” section of the Academic Requirement Report. General education/basic breadth requirement progress is found under the “General Education” section of the Academic Requirement Report.

If students still have unfulfilled general education/basic breadth requirements, those classes should be completed before enrolling in law and justice courses. These should be the highest priority during the first two years of college. It is important for students to complete required 100- and 200- level courses before taking 300- and 400-level courses, as many upper-level courses depend upon the skills and knowledge gained in the lower-level courses.

Transfer Students

Students who transfer to CWU from a community college or another university may have already taken courses that are equivalent to CWU LAJ courses. Courses at Washington state community colleges that count as LAJ equivalent are listed on the following table.

Standing Requirements

Once a student has been admitted to the program, that student must earn a minimum grade of C- in

	LAJ300 Admin of Criminal Justice	LAJ303 Legal Research	LAJ313 Intro to Criminal Law	LAJ331 Investiga tion
Edmonds		LEGAL 210
Everett	CJ 101		CRMJ 201
Grays Harbor	CJ 101
Highline	CJ 101	LEGAL 199
Pierce	CJ 112
Shoreline	CJ 101
Spokane	CJ 102			CJ 211
Whatcom	CJ 101			CJ 206
Yakima	CJ 101			CJ 203
Edmonds		LEGAL 210
Everett	CJ 101		CRMJ 201

each course to fulfill major & minor requirements. Courses completed with a grade lower than C- will not count towards the major.

Washington community colleges not listed in the above table do not currently have courses equivalent to CWU Law and Justice courses.

Courses from out-of-state community colleges or from other universities will not automatically transfer over. Students should check with Registrar to discuss whether these courses will count as CWU

LAJ equivalent.

LAJ Student Learning Goals

1. Disciplinary Breadth

Students will learn the fundamental concepts, terminology, history, and findings of law and justice as a whole.

2. Practical Tools

Students will develop a working ability with the methodological tools of the discipline. This includes legal research and criminal justice methods and analysis.

3. Academic Resources

Students will become familiar with the use of the scholarly resources of law and justice, including library and online resources, with particular emphasis upon legal, criminology, and criminal justice sources.

4. Professional Development

Students will engage in experiences that introduce the professional standards and opportunities of the discipline. These may include such curricular elements as attending professional meetings, receiving guidance about employment of graduate study, participating in internships, co-op learning, and expose to the ethical codes of conduct of the sub fields of law and justice, plus opportunities in these related fields.

Scholarships and Awards

The LAJ department offers several scholarships, gives end- of-year awards to outstanding students, and is associated with the Alpha Phi Sigma national honors society for students in the criminal justice sciences.

Student Clubs

Law and Justice Student Club

Faculty Liaison: Veronica Cano

The LAJ Student Club has chapters in Ellensburg, Des Moines, and Lynnwood. The club is extremely productive, organizing fundraisers, events, guest speakers, and educational trips. The club focuses on scholarly, professional, and service activities. The club organizes a trip each spring, often to attend a major academic conference, such as Academy of Criminal Justice Science or Western Society of Criminology. The club host career fair in April or May.

Mock Trial Club

Faculty Liaison: Schaffer Claridge

The Mock Trial Club is for students interested in developing legal advocacy, analytical thinking, and presentation skills. The club will sponsor a team to compete in area moot court competitions.

Research and Study Room

Computer Lab, Library, and Study Room

The LAJ student computer lab is located in Farrell Hall room 320. The lab offers twelve computer workstations and a selection of law and criminal justice books and will also offer a printer.

The LAJ law library is located in Farrell Hall room 320/341, and offers a wide selection of legal reference books.

The LAJ study room is located in Farrell Hall room 341.

Students are invited to use any of these spaces to work on research projects, go online, or relax in a quiet setting to study.

Brooks Library

Law and Justice students often have the need to find cases and information on laws. Sites like Findlaw and Oyez, a site that provides summaries for virtually every important case that was ever presented to the Court as well as information about Justices and the history of the Court, provide an excellent starting point.

The CWU library page links students to Lexis/Nexis, NCJRS, ProQuest, newspapers, article first and a huge variety of other databases and is the best place to begin important research. For Washington law and the RCW, Washington State's homepage can also be accessed. For federal statutes one can access the Cornell University site, featuring a searchable version of the United States Code.

Unacceptable Behavior Policy

Law & Justice majors are held to high standards of behavior. As future professionals in criminal justice and legal professions, graduates will be held to high standards by employers, beginning with background checks. As those charged with upholding the law, professionals in criminal justice professions must maintain a higher standard of behavior than required of citizens generally. Further, our goal is to provide an educational experience that serves all our students, faculty, and staff. Unacceptable behavior directed at other students, faculty or staff will not be allowed to continue.

Students may be removed from a course, or from the program, for unacceptable behavior. Unacceptable behavior includes any behavior likely to substantially or repeatedly interfere with the conduct of instructional activities, including online communication with faculty, staff, or other students; meetings or telephone communication with faculty; conduct within the department office or other communication with staff.

Examples of unacceptable behavior include, but are not limited to:

- Shouting, rude or offensive gestures;
- Disruptive behavior in class;
- Defamatory or insulting language;
- Language that would constitute harassment, threats or discrimination.
- Disregard for agency policies during an internship or visit.

This policy does not restrict the instructor's prerogative to ask a disruptive student to leave a specific class session, or to refer the student to the Office of Student Success for a violation of the student code of conduct.

Code of Ethics for LAJ Majors & Minors

Law and Justice (LAJ) students are held to high standards because we, as professionals in law and justice, will go on to protect, define, create, and uphold laws. Our policies in the department are general to encompass all academic and ethical violations, including those specified herein. Our goal is to make our department the best it can be, with the cooperation of the university, faculty, staff, and the students.

Conduct and Academic Dishonesty

Students enrolled as LAJ majors or minors will be subject to disciplinary action upon violation of any proscribed conduct as defined by the Student Judicial Code (See appendix B of the CWU catalog). Due to the nature of the field, academic dishonesty is of great concern and sanctions will be consistently enforced.

- Academic dishonesty includes, but is not limited to:
- Purchasing papers (via internet, friends, magazines, etc.).
- Cheating on assignments or tests.
- Plagiarism, or using another's ideas or information as your own.

All cases of academic dishonesty will be recorded by the LAJ department Chair. The Chair has the ultimate discretion over disciplinary sanctions. LAJ students are encouraged to report their fellow students' violations of proscribed conduct. Falsely reporting a student may result in expulsion from the program.

If academic dishonesty occurs, then the following sanctions may be implemented:

- First Offense: Failure of the class.
- Further Offenses: Further violations may immediately result in suspension or expulsion from the department. Additional University sanctions may also be imposed at any time.

Appeals and Amendments

All students accused of violating proscribed conduct shall be made aware of all claims being brought against them and they shall be given an opportunity to defend themselves. An appellate process is made available to students who feel unjustly disciplined

(see the Student Judicial Code in appendix B of the CWU catalog).

Policy on Diversity

University level education is about broadening horizons and looking at academic issues from a variety of perspectives.

With this in mind, the participants are encouraged to bring their own life experiences and viewpoints to bear on classroom discussions and assignments. Along with the freedom to express one's own views comes the responsibility to respect the views of others. No student will be discriminated against on the basis of race, ethnicity, age, creed, religion, gender, sexual orientation, marital status, or political ideology.

ADA Statement

It is our goal to ensure that individuals with disabilities have equal access to programs, services and facilities here at Central Washington University. Policy on Sexual Harassment

It is the policy of Central Washington University to maintain a work and academic community which is free from sexual harassment. Sexual harassment violates state and federal law and will not be tolerated by this institution. An individual in violation of this policy will be subject to informal or formal disciplinary action up to and including dismissal from employment.

Persons who believe they are experiencing sexual harassment are encouraged to act promptly and report such concerns to their immediate supervisor, administrator or department chair, the director of the office for equal opportunity (Bouillon 203, (509) 963-2206), or vice president for rights & responsibilities (Bouillon 204, (509) 963-1515). Concerns which involve student to student sexual harassment may be brought to the attention of the vice president for student affairs. The university encourages resolution of sexual harassment complaints at the lowest possible level.

Minors with the LAJ Major

Choosing a Minor

Since the LAJ major is only 60 credits, most students need to take courses outside of the major. Many students use those courses to earn a minor. The most common minors associated with the LAJ major are Sociology, Psychology, and Political Science. Choose a minor for personal interest and pursue career goals. For many, the ability to communicate in Spanish is a strong asset.

Students should not expect to take 80, 90, or 100 credits of LAJ courses. For a well-balanced degree, students should plan to take courses outside of the LAJ program to complete their degree.

Choose a minor that will help advance you toward your career goals.

Grade Appeal

As a student at Central Washington University, you have the right to appeal a course grade, assessed fine, academic suspension, or disciplinary action. No individual shall be penalized or retaliated against in any way by the university community for his or her participation in this complaint procedure.

A course grade:

Students have protection from arbitrary, capricious, or discriminatory grading or evaluations. Students looking to appeal their course grade are encouraged to first attempt a resolution with the faculty member, then with the Department Chair, and if unable to resolve with the chair then meet with the Academic Dean. If these attempts fail to provide an outcome that the student finds acceptable, the student has the right to submit a written appeal to the Board of Academic Appeals to schedule a hearing and make a final determination on the course grade.

After Graduation

Law School

Law schools look at the rigor of the courses you take, not just the grades. Writing- and reading-intensive courses are important, as is logic and analysis. They also look for community service or service in an area of law that you are interested in.

Pre-Law Advisors: Teresa Divine, Charles Reasons, Krystal E. Noga-Styron, Shaffer Claridge.

Masters of Science in Law and Justice

The need for personnel in human and protective services will grow at a rate above the state and national average, where an advanced degree is increasingly in demand. The benefits to obtaining a Master's degree include career advancement, increased salary/pension, improved skill/professional abilities, increased retirement contribution and savings, and improved hiring possibilities.

Graduate Coordinator: Cody Stoddard
