TIME MANAGEMENT APPS

30/30 Time Manager:

Completely gesture-based, this app divides tasks into 30-minute time periods, with breaks in between. 30/30 provides a comprehensive dashboard for task completion time, which can help as you plan additional course schedules or assignments.

Focus Booster:

Marketed as a “digital Pomodoro timer,” Focus Booster is an online app that allows users to break up their schedule into manageable chunks. Focus Booster is essentially a timer that splits up your revision sessions with a number of little breaks in order to keep you as productive as possible. The added benefit of the digital version is that you can track exactly how much time you’ve spent on a certain topic, as well as being able to analyze this activity on your dashboard.

Finish:

When you finish a task, simply swipe over it and gain a checkmark, along with a nice rewarding sound. In addition, all your completed tasks are automatically archived, so you can finally stop rifling through your laundry in search of those old paper lists!

Any.do:

Allows you to organize your day by allowing you to create reminders, to-do lists, notes, and events and store them on the clean and easy-to-use Any.do interface. The app works across platforms, making it easy to switch from your phone to your laptop without missing anything on your schedule.

Evernote:

Evernote allows you to gather all your notes, thoughts, and ideas in one place across many devices. Whether you like keeping notes on your phone or not, Evernote lets you save any article, film clip, or general webpage so that you can come back to it another time and on any device.

Google Keep:

Allows individuals to set up to-do lists, set reminders, and make notes for themselves.

Google our Outlook Calendar:

Allows individuals to set up tasks, event dates, and create multiple calendars. There are multiple colors that individuals can use to distinguish event dates.

Egenda:

Organizes your classes, and manages all your homework, projects, quizzes, and tests from your classes in one place. Includes daily reminders about what's due the next day and adds notes to remember group members or assignment details.
