Liberal Studies, Minor

Online Program

Program Overview
The College of Arts and Humanities’ BA, Liberal Studies minor (30 cr) is attractive in a variety of situations and academic needs. The program is designed for students whose primary interest lies in a variety of areas within the arts and humanities and requires interdepartmental course selections, which are not possible within single academic programs or established curricula. The program offers students an opportunity to devise an approved, coherent program of study from across the institution, fulfilling academic and/or career goals and includes prerequisites consistent with the 300/400-level coursework within the approved courses.

Students in the Liberal Studies minor must take courses in at least three disciplines. Because of the humanistic focus of the program, courses used in the program "Course of Study" from disciplines outside of the College of Arts and Humanities require the approval of the BA, Liberal Studies program director.
